Lien filed against Wellness Center seeks past due payment for propane

Just when many people had the impression that the financial woes of the Twin lakes Family Wellness Center were finally being resolved, recent revelations now have many citizens, and especially local government officials, very concerned about the current debts still owed by the Wellness Center board.

A major issue came to light last week, just hours after a special meeting of Clinton County Fiscal Court--when a lien against the facility was filed by a local gas company, due a gas bill that is over $60,000 in arrearage. Apparently there are other debts, but on a smaller scale than the propane bill.

The lien, which also included the county and city governments, was filed by Haddix Gas Company of Albany against the Twin Lakes Family Wellness Center. The document was filed Thursday, April 24 in the county clerk's office.

The debt accumulated over the years, prior to the facility eventually tying onto a natural gas line earlier this year.

According to the lien on file in the county clerk's office, the amount owed to Haddix Gas and Electric is $67,420.38 "plus accumulated interest, costs and attorney fees."

The lien also has attached all of all charged receipts of propane that was made throughout the period in which the indebtedness occurred as well as a copy of the lease agreement. According to the document, "Haddix Gas & Electric began supplying gas to the Twin Lakes Family Wellness Center, Inc. on August 13, 2010 and services pertaining thereto continued through the 1st day of April, 2014."

It was noted that periodic payments had been made through the time frame

Relay for Life nets $50,000 for fight against cancer

Above, Cancer survivors stood at mid-court and watched as caregivers of cancer patients, as well as family members who have lost someone to cancer, make a lap around the gym floor Friday night at the Relay for Life event.

At right, one of the booths at this year's Relay for Life event was hosted by the Clinton County High School Cheerleaders. Cheerleader MaKayla Brown painted the fingernails of Holden Thrasher. The booth also offered face painting and a bouncy house.

The 2014 Clinton County Relay For Life program is in the books, and although the overall numbers were down from previous record-setting years, the signature event to help raise money for the American Cancer Society was still successful in the amount of funds collected.

When all was said and done and the work complete, some $50,000 had been raised in Clinton County, according to Lisa Smith, Public Relations Coordinator for the local Relay For Life.

Even though the bottom line total was below the $72,000 raised a year ago, it is still a significant amount of revenue for an area and population of Albany and Clinton County.

Smith also noted that the $50,000 total was preliminary as final totals were still being calculated as of press time and an official amount, as well as team totals, will be published next week.

Clinton County is also in a new area, that being the Mid-South Division, and Adam Smedberg is currently the Relay For Life Specialist and will be the person the local committee will be working with throughout the upcoming year.

The annual Relay For Life was held at the Clinton County High School gymnasium last Friday, April 25. This year's program was reduced in time, going from 6 p.m. to 12 midnight. But there was plenty of time for fun, fellowship and most of all, tributes to cancer victims and those who have survived the disease that has affected some many lives and families not only nationwide, but locally.

The theme for this year's Relay was "The Cure Commanders."

The program began with the annual "survivor lap" where local cancer survivors took the first lap around the track. This year, a total of 33 cancer survivors were on hand, practically the same number as a year ago.

A total of eight Relay teams also participated in events throughout the night.

The program included the luminaries ceremonies at 9 p.m., with the closing ceremonies at 11 a.m.

Overall participation among teams and volunteers was down from years past and this year, for the first time, Clinton County was placed in the Bowling Green area of the state's American Cancer Society's relay efforts, which may have taken a little time for the adjustment in personnel that local volunteers are used to working with.

Also, a continued poor economy, coupled with an extremely harsher than usual winter that kept many people away from Relay For Life planning meetings early in the year, were contributing factors to the lower numbers in 2014.

Smith and other local volunteers hope next year will be better, possibly with an earlier start in planning, getting more sponsors and volunteers, among other factors.

Smith and all of the Relay For Life volunteers, team leaders, etc. are appreciative to the community and those who helped support the efforts to raise money to fight cancer in any way and are looking forward to a much more successful year in 2015.

The American Cancer Society Relay For Life movement is the world's largest fundraising event to end cancer, uniting communities across the globe to finish the fight. Dollars raised by more than four million Relay participants in 25 countries help the American Cancer Society save lives by supporting education and prevention efforts, funding groundbreaking cancer research, and providing free information and services for people with cancer who need them. The following are just some of the ways you're helping the Society finish the fight:

* In 2013, we gave cancer patients more than 380,000 rides to and from treatment or medical appointments.

* In 2013, we fulfilled nearly one million requests for cancer information via the phone, mail, and online

Healthy Hometown Coalition meets, learns of $5,000 gift

The Clinton County Healthy Hometown Coalition, a relatively new effort here geared toward improving the health status of local residents and in particular the health of children in the county, held a meeting last week and received a major beneficial "shot in the arm".

With about 25 Coalition members in attendance, the session centered around a host of reports from various members of the local group about the efforts of each in recent weeks to continue the battle against poor health practices in this county and region that adversely affect the population.

At the conclusion of those reports, the Clinton County Healthy Hometown Coalition heard from member Lora Cross Brewington who announced that her employer, Cumberland Family Medical, had selected the Clinton County program to be the recipient of a $5,000 gift to help with it's efforts.

Brewington, who has been involved with the Clinton County Coalition since it's beginnings last year and serves as Secretary for the group, made the presentation to Coalition Chairperson Paula Little.

The announcement of the donation by Brewington was met with cheers and applause from those attending the meeting last Thursday at the Clinton County Welcome Center.

Also attending the meeting last week were two representatives from the Foundation for a Healthy Kentucky staff, Doug Hogan, Communications Director, and Amealia Mendoza, the Senior Program Officer.

Clinton County was one of just seven communities chosen to organize a local coalition in an effort to address the concerns of the health issues of children, and especially the topics of chronic disease and obesity in children, and possible solutions to those problems that would be addressed on a local level.

The program is working from a three-stage grant funding process that is currently in it's first year of initial funding.

It was the consensus of the group at this point that promoting more outside activity for children would be an initial target area, and likely the funding of new playground equipment for the Fiscal court approves playground grant, natural gas line easement

Clinton Fiscal Court held a special call meeting last Thursday morning with all members present and three items of business on the agenda. Among the items was discussion of the Wellness Center financial status and a separate article on that issue appears beginning on page 1.

Two other, more positive, issues were discussed and acted on during the approximate 45-minute session.

The court first considered a request from Bell Engineering requesting the county grant Navitas Utility Corporation an easement within a county road right-of-way to accommodate Keystone Foods in obtaining natural gas to property.

Judge/Executive Lyle Huff said the only area where the line would cross county property was on McWhorter Road.

The request noted the engineering firm was working with Navitas to extend gas service to Keystone Foods, noting the line will lie within road right-of-way for the majority of the project. They requested permission to lay the line within the McWhorter Road right-of-way, including crossing the road using the boring method.

Following a brief discussion, a motion was made by Magistrate Mickey Riddle to approve the easement for the line, which passed by unanimous vote.

Dr. Robert Williams, Manager of the local Keystone Foods plant, said he was excited about the natural gas project, mentioning the most recent winter where propane became in short supply at times. He said the natural gas project would be of great benefit to the poultry industry in this area, as well as an economic asset.

Judge Huff also said the installation of natural gas lines to the county's largest single employer would help maintain the jobs at the plant, thus helping the positive economic impact it has on the county.

The court was also presented a resolution in support of a grant application from the Land and Water Conservation Fund, administered through the Department of Local Government. The grant, if approved, would be used to upgrade the playground area at Mountain View Park.

Tips for beef sire selection

Source: Darrh Bullock, beef specialist

The overall goal of a beef cattle operation is to increase net income by balancing what is spent on the operation with how much income it generates. A beef producer can accomplish this goal by increasing income while minimizing additional costs, or reducing costs while trying to maintain income.

One way to do this is to improve herd genetics through individual bull selection.

You should assess four primary characteristics when considering a purchase. These are reproductive soundness, structural soundness, visual evaluation and performance characteristics.

Having a breeding soundness exam done is the best way to determine a bull's reproductive soundness. While passing this exam means he should have the physical soundness to breed and settle cows, it does not measure desire. Observe bulls for their interest in females in heat.

Indications of structural soundness are that the bull moves without pain or discomfort and has appropriate angles at weight-bearing joints.

Visual observation is one way to evaluate important traits. These can include disposition, color, muscling, horned/polled, body capacity, structure, sheath and testicular development.

Expected calf performance is a primary reason to buy a bull. If replacement females will be retained, the first decision will be the breed's productivity level. When the breed is determined, selection among bull performance should be based on the expected progeny difference whenever possible. There is no such animal as the "best bull," because selection should be based on what you need to get from the bull.

Remember that as you select to improve one trait you often lose ground in another trait. For example, selecting for increased growth usually inadvertently increases cows' mature size and maintenance when retaining replacements. Balancing cows' productivity levels and energy requirements is extremely difficult and if done improperly likely will result in decreased reproduction. Before you buy a bull, consider what you want to produce and what resources (primarily nutrition) you have available.

Bull selection has an important long-term economic impact on your herd. Selecting the right bull for your operation involves setting production goals, analyzing your resources and management and locating the bull that best fits your situation. While this process will take time and effort, it can generate significant financial rewards when properly done.

For more information on selecting a beef sire and other management decisions for your beef cattle operation, contact the Clinton County Cooperative Extension Service at 606-387-5404.

Educational programs of the University of Kentucky Cooperative Extension Service serve all people regardless of race, color, age, sex, religion, disability or national origin.

Clinton Care and Rehab to host NDOP event

Clinton County Care and Rehab Center will host an event on Thursday, May 1 at 9:30 a.m. to celebrate the National Day of Prayer.

The National Day of Prayer is held each year on the first Thursday in May. A law was enacted in 1952 formalizing observance of the day, although its origins trace back to 1775, when the first Continental Congress called for a National Day of Prayer and melding the relationship between government and the blessings of God.

This year's theme for Signature's third annual National Day of Prayer celebration is "Defiance of Suffering." We are expecting representatives of local government to be with us.

At Signature's Louisville headquarters, the company recognized the National Day of Prayer with an interfaith celebration of several religions and faith traditions. Representatives from a dozen religions or faith will join to recite prayer together, signifying spiritual diversity and the importance of prayer in daily life.

"The act of unified prayer is important as a symbol of faith, but even more than that, we want this event to be actionable," said Dianne Timmering, Vice President of Spirituality for Signature HealthCARE. "Each and every one of us suffers, in some way, maybe daily. Under this year's theme, we want the National Day of Prayer to be a springboard for every day to be a day in defiance of suffering. We are a movement in defiance of suffering."

The event will be simulcast to all 96 signature nursing homes, which each hosted its own unique National Day of Prayer celebrations.

"As a faith-based company, we are proud to host an event that brings together so many spiritual groups," said Signature President and CEO Joe Steier. "We hope many will join us to celebrate this historic day."

"The Stewardess Was Served The Gospel"

Let's Go Soul Winning

By the late Dr. Jack Hyles

Once when I was flying from Cape May, New Jersey (where I had spoken for Dr. Carl McIntire), to Philadelphia, I was the only passenger on the plane. It was a little bitty plane which could carry about 22 people. It had a pilot and co-pilot, but I was the only passenger. They used the loudspeaker and said, "We welcome you, gentleman," and the went through the whole ordeal of welcoming me on the airplane. During that flight I told them both about the Saviour. One of them received Christ as we were flying on that little plane.

That reminds me of one of the most interesting experiences of my life. I had preached at the Bob Jones University in Greenville, South Carolina. I caught a plane just before midnight, and I was the only passenger. Do you recall the days of the old electra planes? This was an electra. There were four stewardesses, a pilot, a co-pilot, and an engineer - a crew of seven and one passenger! I had been flying many years; so I decided to have a little fun, I got up and said to the stewardesses, "Now you sit down. I'm going to pay you back for all the service that you have done for me." (This is probably against every law of the airline!) Anyway, I got the little microphone and I said, "Welcome, ladies, aboard flight 64. We will be traveling at an altitude of 12,000 feet. Be sure to fasten your safety belts. No smoking until the "No Smoking" sign is turned off. We will be serving beverages once we reach our cruising altitude, so just relax and enjoy your flight.

When we reached the cruising altitude, I got a little pad of paper and said to one of the stewardesses, "Would you like a beverage, please?"

She said, "I would like some hot tea."

I got some hot water, found a tea bag, made her some hot tea, and served her.

To the next stewardess I said, "Beverage, please?"

"Yes, I would like a bloody Mary." Oh, oh, that did it!

"I didn't even know Mary was sick or hurt," I said to her.

"I want a bloody Mary," she repeated.

I said, "I'm sorry! You just crossed the line! In the first place, I wouldn't know how to make one; and in the second place, if I did, I wouldn't!"

They laughed. They had seen my Bibles when I got on the plane and they knew that I was a preacher. As we were flying one of the stewardesses came back to me and said, "Are you a reverend?"

"No, but I'm a preacher."

"You are not like most preachers."

"Thank you."

"You enjoy life, don't you?"

"Yes, and I can tell you how you can enjoy life, too."

In just a few moments that stewardess way back in the back of the plane received Jesus Christ as her personal Saviour.

Once on a flight from Denver, Colorado, to Chicago the stewardess came by and spilled whiskey on me. I smelled like whiskey the rest of the flight. When I got off the plane she said, "You are so nice. I appreciate your attitude."

I said, "It's not mine, it's His."

"Whose?" she asked.

I pointed to Heaven and I won her to Christ after everybody was off the airplane.

Then there was the time I was flying on a chartered two-passenger plane to Eau Claire, Wisconsin. The pilot and I were the only ones on the plane. I said to the pilot, "Do you know if you died today, you would go to Heaven?"

"No, I don't , and don't want to know," he said.

"Let me tell you how to be saved."

"I don't want to hear!"

"Let me tell you anyway. In Romans 3:10 ..."

He turned off the engine and said, "Mister, do I leave this engine off, or do you shut up?"

I said, "I am just about to shut up." You can't win them all!

Somebody is waiting for you to tell him of Jesus today.

FOUNDATION FOR A HEALTHY KENTUCKY

Increasing children's physical activity

By April Speck, Coordinator, Clinton County Healthy Hometown Coalition

Being physically active is just as important to health as eating right. Children need 60 minutes of moderate to vigorous active play every day to grow up to a healthy weight. If this sounds like a lot, consider that eight to 18–year-olds devote an average of 7.5 hours watching TV and movies, using computers and cell phones, and playing cell phones. Only one-third of high school students get the recommended levels of physical activity.

To increase physical activity, children need physical education, safe routes to walk and ride their bikes to school, parks and access to playgrounds and community centers. Children need access to sports leagues and dance or fitness programs that are exciting and challenging to keep them engaged.

In addition to being fun, regular physical activity strengthens bones and muscles, increases self-esteem, and provides many other health benefits. Physical activity, along with eating healthy foods, can help children live healthier lives and perform better in school.

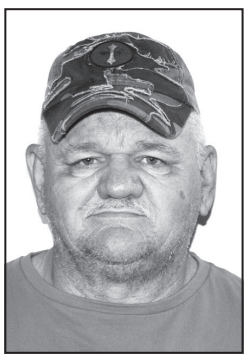

Be a positive role model for your child and register for Healthy Hometown's 1K Family Fun Run/Walk, 5K Run for the Roses or come out to our Health Fair on Saturday, May 3rd at Mountain View Park. Registration starts at 8:30 am and race begins at 9 a.m.

Our 1K Family Fun Run/Walk route is one lap around walking track, 5K Run for the Roses route starts at Mountain View Park to Save A Lot and back. Clinton County students can run or walk for free, as a PEP grant is paying the registration fees for all students. Adult fee $15.00, 100 percent of proceeds will go toward new playground equipment at Mountain View Park.

Upcoming Healthy Hometown Coalition Events

Healthy Hometown is always seeking youth volunteers to go walk at AES with elementary students between 7:20-7:45 a.m. We are also seeking more youth volunteers to go to ECC every Tuesday during 2nd period intervention to facilitate Take 10! Students who walk at AES or go to ECC will get volunteer hours to count on college applications.

Healthy Hometown is working toward a "healthy" Clinton County.

ATV accident leaves two girls injured

The Kentucky State Police were called to the scene of an ATV accident involving 13-year-old Hannah Myers and 12-year-old Abby Tallent Wednesday, April 23.

According to a press release issued by the KSP, the accident occurred around 6:40 p.m. when the ATV, operated by Myers, pulled into the path of a southbound 1999 Ford Ranger driven by 57-year-old Roger Duvall.

Myers and passenger, Tallent, were both transported to Clinton County Hospital followed with Myers being transported to the University of Tennessee Hospital and Tallent was flown to the University of Kentucky Hospital.

The accident occurred on Guinn Bullard Ash Road, eight miles south of Albany.

The KSP was assisted at the scene by the Clinton County EMS.

None of the official reports listed the names of the parents of the victims.

The same grant application was denied a couple of years ago, but it is hoped funding will be available for the project in this funding cycle.

The county and city are apparently applying jointly for the 50/50 matching grant, with the estimated cost of the project being $60,000. The two government entities would help fund the remaining 50 percent match and could use "in-kind" services in part to complete the project cost.

The Recreation/Park Board has been working for the past several months to come up with enough money to purchase new playground equipment and improve the overall playground area at Mountain View Park. The board has held some fundraisers over the past months, usually raising a few hundred dollars at a time, but the amount--which is set aside in a separate playground fund--could also be used as part of the match if the grant is approved.

A motion was made by Magistrate Ricky Craig to approve the resolution in support of the grant application. The motion passed by unanimous vote.

The next regular meeting of fiscal court is scheduled for May 15 at 5 p.m. and is open to the public.

REGIONAL NEWS

CUMBERLAND CO. NEWS
Burkesville

Cumberland County Superintendent of Schools Glen Murphy has announced his retirement which is effective at the end of this school year, June 30, 2014.

"It is with a heavy heart that I have decided to retire from the position of Cumberland County School Superintendent," Murphy said. "I have worked for the school system for 29 years and can honestly say I have loved every day of it. I just feel for my family and myself that it is time that I move on to the next chapter of my life and I have no idea what that holds except to be with my family and friends.

"Education is the most important aspect of a young person's life and I truly hope that in my 29 years that I have had more positive impacts on students than negative. When I became an educator, it was to help students become capable of leading a productive life once they reached the age that they would be on their own and I still try to do that 29 years later. I tell teachers everyday that they have the most important job in the world but at the same time it is the most rewarding job, not in pay, but in that they touch lives daily.

"I have to mention a few people that have helped me on my journey through education over the past 29 years--Mr. David Sharp, former superintendent, Larry McDonald, former teacher/coach, Mr. Jimmie Radford, former principal/teacher, Mrs. Nancy Smith, former principal/teacher, Mr. John Hurt, former superintendent, Mr. Tim Murley, former superintendent of Warren County schools, my parents Dale and Sue Murphy, my former teachers, my family, wife Jani Murphy, son Jarrett and daughter Erika, who have always been my biggest fans, the community of Cumberland County and last, but not least, the "students" of Cumberland County.

"In closing I want to say thank you to everyone for having faith and trust in me to teach, coach and lead the Cumberland County School System. I only hope to stay involved with our schools in some way because I truly care about our schools and students."

TIMES JOURNAL
Russell Springs

A welfare check on Thursday night, April 17, led to the arrest of four individuals for manufacturing methamphetamine at Ballmont Apartments in Jamestown.

Charged with manufacturing methamphetamine and wanton endangerment due to the presence of a two-year-old child were Nicholas S. Fields, 33, Robin Shelton, 29, Angela Shelton, 35, and Kathy J. Canter, 59, after Jeremy England of the Jamestown Police Department was responding to a welfare check.

Upon arriving at the apartments, the smell indicative of methamphetamine manufacturing was noticeable and a search warrant was sought.

Found on the premises was a "one-step" lab along with an HCL generator lab.

The following day felony warrants were served on Angela Shelton and Kathy Canter for theft charges out of Ohio.

The four were housed at Russell County Detention Center.

Jamestown City Council met Thursday, April 17 and had no official business on the agenda beyond approving the minutes from the previous month's meeting, but a few reports were of interest.

Mayor Terry Lawless expressed that the loss of jobs from the closing of Fruit of the Loom was a concern for the entire county, and the meeting had mainly to do with the consequences of the impending closing.

Lawless said they would begin the budgeting process taking into account the loss of tax revenue from FOL.

"This year's budget is going to be a tough one," Lawless said. "But what we're going to do, we're going to budget the first six months just as though Fruit of the Loom were here, because we don't know the schedule. After June 8, we don't know how quickly they're going to start downsizing, how long it's going to take them to get everything moved out."

"Within those six months the budget will probably be amended once? Twice? I don't know. It all depends on the revenue coming in, what the city can afford to do...We're going to do the best we can with what we've got to work with," he said.

After the meeting with Lakefest Chairperson Marcelene Taylor, Mayor Lawless said that with everything going on it may not be appropriate to have Lakefest; that the timing and lack of funds necessitated putting it off until next year.

The four-day, yearly 4th of July event is a decades old tradition of celebration for the city since its inception by Welby and Mae Hoover.

"To be honest with you we can't afford to have it, with all these people losing their jobs," Lawless said. "We just felt that we'd put it off this year and look at it next year. Maybe do it in a smaller fashion, but we just felt like the timing this year; we're just not going to do it."

The city will lose approximately $200,000 in payroll taxes alone from the loss of 600 jobs over the next eight months, along with other taxes and fees.

A meeting has been scheduled with Tourism Director Janette Marson and other community leaders to discuss ways in which an event could still be held without funding from the city.

Lawless was not able to shed more light on the plans of Fruit of the Loom for the county beyond the scale down leading to the plant closing.

"Otis (Skaggs--Public Works Director), Kevin (Shearer--City Attorney) and myself met with one of them yesterday and tried, more or less, to get some sort of exit strategy or see if they had some type of strategy when they left this plant, but basically all they would say is after June 8 they'd start downsizing and they wouldn't say anything else. So what we've heard on the radio or what you read in the paper is all we came away with," Lawless said.

Lawless then addressed questions of city council members.

Council member Barry Coffer asked if there was any help from FOL regarding the expansion of water and sewer done in part to accommodate the needs of the plant.

Lawless addressed the question saying that the bond holders have said they would work with the city on trying to make a markable repayment schedule, but did not indicate any help from FOL.

Council member Jenny Chapman asked if the city owned the land that FOL was on.

City Attorney Shearer said that the city does own the title, but that instructions, when a lease agreement was made, instructed that the deed would be transferred to FOL once the bonds were paid, but that as of yet has not been done.

Shearer said he was pleased with the enthusiasm of the Cabinet for Economic Development in wanting to aggressively market the facility and help the employees.

Council member Marcelene Taylor offered to return her salary as city council member, a request that Mayor Lawless said they would have to check into the ordinance and make changes to allow that.

WAYNE CO. OUTLOOK
Monticello

An altercation between neighbors early Monday morning resulted in the shooting death of one man. Gavin Thompson, 38, died after being shot an undetermined number of times, according to Wayne County Coroner Forrest Hicks.

Hicks said Thompson was pronounced dead at approximately 4:55 a.m. Monday in the emergency room at the Wayne County Hospital. Thompson was transported to the hospital by Wayne County EMS following the shooting that occurred at approximately 3 a.m. on KY 1275.

Kentucky State Police Detective Billy Correll said that Thompson was shot by Ian T. Miller, 21, of Elmira, New York, during an altercation that took place at Thompson's residence.

Hicks said that Thompson's body was transported to the state medical examiner's office in Frankfort for an autopsy to determine the nature of his injuries. He indicated that toxicology samples will ascertain if the use of alcohol or drugs played a part in the incident.

Hicks said the victim's next of kin resides in West Virginia.

Correll said that no arrests had been made, but the investigation is continuing.

Correll was assisted at the scene by Trooper Adam Childress, Trooper Wendell Higginbotham, the Wayne County Sheriff's Office, the Monticello Police Department and Wayne County EMS.

A local pastor entered a guilty plea to 13 counts of first degree sexual abuse during a hearing in Wayne Circuit Court on Tuesday, April 15.

Gerald D. Dishman entered a plea agreement which set the penalty at two five-year sentences to run consecutively. The Commonwealth recommended that the sentence be probated for five years.

Dishman was originally indicted in May 2011 on 13 counts of first degree rape.

The original indictment stated that the alleged incidents occurred between 1982 and 1994, and both the victims were under the age of 12.

Under the plea agreement, the charges were amended to first degree sexual abuse.

The Commonwealth recommended a five year sentence for the first six counts and an additional five year sentence for counts seven through 13.

Formal sentencing for Dishman is set for June 17 at 9 a.m. in Wayne Circuit Court.

THE HERALD CITIZEN
Cookeville, TN

There's been a push to limit the amount of a key ingredient used to manufacture methamphetamines that people can buy over-the-counter. A recent bill aims at doing just that, but some law enforcement officials don't believe it went far enough.

Putnam County Sheriff David Andrews said drugs are connected to a huge part of those in jail right now. Andrews said that if it wasn't for drugs they wouldn't need such a large jail. In fact, it was just a couple of years ago the Herald-Citizen reported that Putnam County was paying close to $20,000 a month for other counties to house our inmates due to overcrowding issues.

How to deal with meth has been a hot-button issue in Tennessee for a while. The state currently has the second highest number of meth lab incidents in the country. According to a 2014 report released by the Office of Research and Education Accountability, Tennessee had 1,717 meth lab incidents in 2012.

In an effort to reduce meth lab incidents, Gov. Bill Haslam introduced a proposal that would have placed restrictions on the amount of products containing pseudoephedrine and ephedrine without a prescription. Popular cold medicines use those ingredients in over-the-counter products. The Tennessee legislature passed a bill that would permit consumers to buy 28.8 grams per year. That's a higher amount that what Haslam proposed.

Andrews said he doesn't think this goes far enough.

Another Putnam County law enforcement official agrees. Maj. Nathan Honeycutt of the Cookeville Police Department is the Middle Tennessee Regional Director of the Tennessee Methamphetamine and Pharmaceutical Task Force. "I think it was a step in the right direction," Honeycutt said, adding he doesn't think it was enough.

Honeycutt said meth labs are a serious problem in this state. "At this point, meth labs are down from last year," he said. He said there is several reasons for that, one of them being the fact that a number of Tennessee communities have passed prescription-only laws in an effort to combat the meth problem themselves. However, Tennessee Attorney General Robert Cooper issued an opinion late last year that stated he believed those rules violated state law.

Honeycutt said Oregon and Mississippi have laws that require prescriptions to purchase these products. "They have a very low number of meth labs every year," Honeycutt said.

According to Honeycutt, legislators are talking about how this law would help the meth problem.

Some feel meth would come from other places if this law was passed. Honeycutt said the law is targeting meth labs, which are very dangerous for a variety of reasons.

A common way of "cooking" meth is using what is sometimes referred to as the shake-and-bake method. It is very dangerous and sometimes results in severe burns that require hospitalization and in some cases can cause death. A number of burn-related cases seen in hospitals nationwide are related to meth.

Limiting the amount of products that contain pseudoephedrine and ephedrine would reduce the meth labs. Honeycutt said you can't do it without these ingredients.

Honeycutt said the Tennessee Methamphetamine and Pharmaceutical Task Force really did support the governor's original proposal and wish that it had passed in that form.

"We are hopeful it makes a difference," Honeycutt said about the bill passed by the legislature, adding they are not optimistic.

Kentucky's "real" biggest sports moment (or two)

A big chunk of the world tuned in earlier this month when the Kentucky Wildcats were vying for the NCAA men's basketball championship but believe it or not - roundball junkies - that wasn't really Kentucky's biggest moment in sports.

That comes this weekend when the 140th running of the Kentucky Derby takes place and most of the rest of the free world will focus their eyes on our Bluegrass State for the "Most Exciting Two Minutes in Sports".

Yes - believe it or not, there are sports fans out there who don't watch college basketball and when they tune in from across the world this Saturday, they actually won't have any idea about the 40 minutes in Kentucky sports that we roundball fans enjoyed just three weeks ago.

Back to this Saturday and this horse race thing - as has long been the tradition in this space, it's time for my annual predictions as to the two horses that I think will likely cross the finish line first this Saturday.

As long-time readers will remember, my former scientific methods of choosing a Derby winner was based on two things - the horse with the most catchy name, and the horse that Pat Day was up on.

Since Pat Day has long since retired from the racing game, my method has reverted back to just guessing which horse will actually win the race, coupled with the still favorite method of picking the horse that I think has the best name of those lined up in the gate.

So, here goes, and I urge any potential bettors out there using this as a way of choosing your bets - not to go over $5 each.

The horse most likely to win is the odds -on favorite that everyone else is picking as of this writing (Tuesday morning), that being California Chrome.

CC, prior to post position drawing was a 7-2 favorite that has most recently won the San Felipe and the Santa Anita Derby and has been trained by Art Sherman, who is a former jockey turned trainer.

If you're going to bet all $10 on one horse - I'd go with California Chrome simply because he's coming off as the most picked favorite to make his way to the winner's circle come Saturday.

Now for the best name winner - I'm going with Hoppertunity, and as it turns out, he's not such a back pick anyway.

Trained by three-time Derby winner Bob Baffert, Hoppertunity was listed as a pre-post drawing 14-1 entry and will likely go off even better than that.

His best Derby road finish came last month when he won the Rebel at Oaklawn but even more impressively was a second place finish to California Chrome in the Santa Anita earlier this month.

Baffert's been in the game a long, long time, and with three Derby wins, his last one came in 2002 with War Emblem. He's due another and it could likely come this year.

There you have it - like I said earlier, I wouldn't bet over $5 each based on my horse knowledge, and we'll take a look next week at how these picks actually came out.

Truth be known, when we do visit the track, I generally spend more time cashing Janie's tickets that I do my own anyway - and she always bets the filly.

Good luck - post time for this 140th running is 5:24 p.m. central time. Unless you plan on attending - tune the TV to NBC.

Sports in Kentucky

Turn the page, but first, a baker's dozen retrospects

Recalibrate the mind – critical mass free throws become critical finish exacta, furlong times, the jockey and mile-and-a-quarter.

Names on our mind's marquee change too. Julius, Cauley-Stein, Russ and Luke give way to horse owner imaginations – Vicar's In Trouble, Chitu, We Miss Artie and Uncle Sigh.

Most exquisite element in sports that draws us back as calendar rolls over, that changes too. What if and If only.

Question/suspense: "Who's comin' back?" and "What's the recruiting news?" and maybe "What episode of NBA As The World Turns is on this week?"

More May calendar queries: "What ball coach job jumped today?" ... "What player got arrested for DUI after the party?" and "Who's Calvin (Borel) ridin' in the seventh on Sat-dee?"

At the track, at the ball park on to hoops series against the Hoosiers, the sporting possibilities here in Kentucky keep us on this side of the highway's yellow line. Sane and buffered from hateful politics, pollen counts, what country USA pledges to protect this week, and of course, Vladimir Putin's latest mischief.

This week, in front of us, the heralded most exciting two minutes in sports. In truth, this hoss race is two minutes bubble-wrapped in layers enough of televised show-off pomp and pretend, dress-up and "bring me another drink, but not that green thing!" to make one gag.

Derby day has morphed into a week of pageant then Saturday night that begs for a Patti Page epilogue: "Is that all there is?"

Today though, let us take pause for a first-week-in-May look back.

This week, a retrospective.

1. Who's coming back to Kentucky's 5-star hotel? Everybody almost. Aaron and Andrew Harrison were last of eight to tweet Big Blue Nation, they will return.

Twins return leaves us to wonder if NBA draft guru Chad Ford made this call: "Both are borderline first round picks right now. If the twins declare this year, they are playing in the D-League."

2. Julius Randle and James Young? Bye. And, for UK's fund for legitimate student-athletes, send money.

3. What could be new at Kentucky: When 40-0 is mentioned, nobody laughs.

4. Ghost of 40-0. With arguably the best assemblage of talent in college hoops ever, the pressure's on. John Calipari may as well have a 40-0 tattoo when hoops magazines arrive in July. With this roster, Calipari has chance to prove he's an extraordinary coach instead of a "gonna make ya rich in seven months" flim-flam man with a good hair cut.

5. Kentucky will be back atop the ratings and cast anew as New York Yankees of college hoops.

6. Best of it: Alex Poythress. Excellent student makes right decision and considering his play in March, a $unny-Side future during and beyond the NBA black hole.

7. Football. Spring games are now in the film room. Video to be hashed over, broken down and synthesized with the fine comb scrutiny allotted Donald Sterling cell phone calls.

8. Best of it for Big Blue Nation? UK could be quarterback-rich. Cream-to-top come autumn – Reese Phillips and Patrick Towles.

9. Best of it II, Mark Stoops said this: "... (last year) we just weren't very good. (This year) we're better. We're still not where we need to be but we're better."

10. Worst of it. Defensive secondary. Was awful a season ago and didn't look appreciably better against Towles, Phillips and Drew Barker. Leaving BBN to wonder, "If ya can't solve QBs you see at practice every day, how're you gonna handle an afternoon in Gainesville or Baton Rouge?"

11. Kentucky spring game analysis from here: With an eye on first half of a 2014 schedule (five of first six at home, and road game at rebuilding instead of reload Florida) huge opportunity.

12. Chance of a football surge at UK hasn't been so reasonable since 1997 when Hal Mumme got hold of Tim Couch's coattails, and media swooned over bandwagoned both.

13. By way of his girlfriend cell phone record button, Donald Sterling crammed both feet and a 747 into his mouth without so much as a press conference last week.

CNN and Don Lemon would have us skip the legal preliminaries, do a poll, then crucify the NBA Los Angeles Clippers owner at halftime of a Lakers game.

Sterling's ugly racist cell phone rant became on Friday. Presto, CNN News and Lemon took a weekend away from Malaysian Flight 370, called in the heavy artillery for a weekend of talking-head righteousness. It amounted to knee jerk overkill, but presumably a boatload of teevee ratings.

WORTH REPEATING DEPT.

"I think it's the single worst violation of student-athlete relationships," he told football bowl game officials recently.

"Kids don't go to class the second semester. They come in and play basketball a year and leave. I have no quarrel with kids wanting to go play basketball, [but] I think they should have to stay a couple or three years."

"I don't know anybody who does [like it] There's one small set of people who are against that. Agents, representatives for NBA players."

PARTING SHOT

On-farm investment opportunities available for Clinton County farmers

$118,000 in Kentucky Agricultural Development Funds awarded

The Kentucky Agricultural Development Board, chaired by Gov. Steve Beshear, recently awarded $118,000 in Clinton County Agricultural Development Funds for a County Agricultural Investment Program (CAIP). The Clinton County Farm Bureau submitted a proposal to the Clinton County Agricultural Development Council and the Kentucky Agricultural Development Board to provide cost-share incentives to area farmers.

"To remain viable, our farmers must continue adapting to an evolving world and the technological advances it is producing," said Gov. Beshear. "I am committed to giving our farmers the tools and resources they need to remain competitive and continue Kentucky's strong farming tradition. The KADF County Agricultural Investment Program provides incentives for farmers to try new techniques and technologies to keep their operations competitive and continue this tradition."

CAIP is designed to provide farmers with incentives to allow them to improve and diversify their current production practices. CAIP combines what were previously known as county model cost-share programs into one, where each model program becomes an investment area.

"The Kentucky Agricultural Development Fund continues to play an important role in diversification across the Commonwealth," said Sen. Sara Beth Gregory, of Monticello. "I am pleased that our farm families in Clinton County have the opportunity to enhance their farm operations through this investment program."

"I am pleased with the Agricultural Development Board's commitment through CAIP," said House Minority Floor Leader Jeff Hoover, of Jamestown. "The diversification of agriculture in Clinton County is greatly aided by the Kentucky Agricultural Development Fund. These cost-share incentives will assist our local farmers in maximizing their economic potential."

CAIP covers a wide variety of agricultural enterprises in its 10 investment areas, including commercial production of aquaculture; bees and honey; equine; forage; beef and dairy cattle; goats and sheep; horticulture; poultry; swine; and timber, as well as energy efficiency and production; farm infrastructure and water enhancement; marketing; and value-added production.

Applications will be available for producers to pick up at the Clinton County Extension Office, starting Monday, May 12. Completed applications are due back to the Extension Office by 4 p.m. CDT, on Friday, May 23.

An informational meeting covering program updates and the producer application will be held at the Clinton County Fairgrounds on Thursday, May 15, at 6 p.m.

For more information about the sign-up period and the complete guidelines for this program in Clinton County, contact Colby Guffey with the extension service at 606-387-5404 or 606-688-1950.

About 25 local individuals representing several agencies and businesses that make up the Clinton County Healthy Hometown Coalition attended a meeting last Thursday at the Clinton County Welcome Center to hear reports and reviews as to how the Coalition was progressing toward it's goals of finding ways to address the quality of health for residents of Clinton County. The group hopes to receive grant funding from the Foundation for a Healthy Kentucky that will allow the program to continue for future years.

Mountain View Recreation Park will be the group's first project

The group also plans to raise funds through a host of various activities as well as working with other local entities for the same goals.

With the Coalition still in it's first year of existence and funding, it previously hired April Speck to serve as the Coordinator, and the goal is to win funding for the continuation of the efforts in Clinton County.

During Thursday's meeting, reports were heard from several agencies and individuals who summarized efforts that had been made to address health concerns of both children and adults in the area.

Included among those giving reports were: Colby Guffey, County Extension Agent; Sandra Guffey, 21st Century and Twin Lakes Family Wellness Center; Jean Harlow, Health Educator for Lake Cumberland Health Department; Lamon Tyler Hubbs, C.C.H.S student member; Bobby Reneau, Mountain View Park Director, Tyonia Sinclair, PEP Director and night grad health teacher at C.C.H.S, Stacy Smith, Food Stamp Nutrition Education Program; and Tonya Thrasher, C.C.H.S. Family Resource Coordinator.

The reports included a summary of activities that had been organized by Sandra Guffey at the Wellness Center to promote physical activity for both youth and adults.

She noted that among her programs were an organized youth basketball league, swimming classes at the Wellness Center and for the older students, organized video game gatherings that focused on games geared toward physical exertion.

Another presentation included a report from Colby Guffey who outlined several programs his organization has sponsored.

Those included teaching the value of raising healthy vegetables by helping pre-schoolers plant bean seeds to sponsoring a June Dairy Appreciation program last year to teach elementary aged children about the dairy industry.

Bobby Reneau included information in his report that bolstered the Coalition's plans to acquire new playground equipment for the Mountain View Park, noting how much work had gone into repairing the equipment that was currently being used, some of which had originally been installed at 76 Falls Country Club when it was first founded in 1968, while another piece of equipment had been salvaged and restored after being discarded by the Lake Cumberland State Park.

Along the lines of planned activities, the Healthy Hometown Coalition is sponsoring a 5K Run for the Roses race, along with a 1K Family Run/Walk and a related Health Fair this Saturday, May 3.

Registration for the race will be at 8:30 a.m. with the race to begin at 9:00 a.m. at Mountain View Park.

An entry fee of $15 will be charged to adults, with students up to the 12th grade running without charge.

A registration form is available in this week's Clinton County News on page 8.

Lien

with the last payment being made in the amount of $500 on January 13 of this year, with the last supplying of gas being made on the same day.

Clinton Fiscal Court members discussed the Wellness Center issues at the call meeting held early last Thursday morning, the same day in which the lien was filed.

However, nothing was resolved at that session as the issues surrounding the matter was discussed during a 35-minute closed session, which pertained to the possible pending litigation involving a public agency.

Prior to the court entering into closed session, County Attorney Michael Rains briefly laid the groundwork of what the discussion would pertain to, noting possible actions "on several fronts," including the propane gas bill to Haddix and the possible future involvement with the Department of Local Government, which helped fund the construction of the facility with a $1 million grant in which the county and city were recipients.

Weldon Haddix, owner of Haddix Gas, was at the meeting when the magistrates returned to open session, however, he declined to comment on the issue since he was there without his legal counsel. Haddix is being represented by local attorney David Choate.

Following the closed session, Rains announced the aforementioned issues had been discussed in the executive session but no action--during or after--was taken prior to the meeting being adjourned.

Clinton County Judge/Executive Lyle Huff presented the news media with a copy of a letter from Bobby Russell, General Counsel for the Kentucky Department of Local Government and its Director, Tony Wilder. The document was dated last Tuesday, April 22 to Judge Huff and Albany Mayor Nicky Smith.

The Twin Lakes Family Wellness Center building and real properties are deeded to the county. The federal grant of $1 million, administered through the Department of Local Government, lists the County of Clinton and City of Albany as joint repaints, which is the apparent reason that the DLG names both local government entities as being liable for the repayment of the grant funds should the facility cease operating prior to June 8, 2016.

The Wellness Center building itself was originally slated to be constructed in the county's industrial park north of Albany but the location was later changed. Once the building was built, the City of Albany was left off the actual deed. However, apparently because it was an original co-recipient of the federal grant, a Community Development Block Grant (CDBG), the DLG considers the city to be obligated--along with the county-for the grant, according to Russell's letter.

Russell reiterated some points that have been made in the past, stating in part that "...City of Albany and County of Clinton were recipients of a $1,0000,000 Community Development Block Grant originally dated August 6, 2007. Pursuant to terms of the joint CDBG agreement with the Department of Local Government, the City and County have specific obligations.

"As set forth...the City and County are obligated to ensure operation of the Wellness Center until June 8, 2016. Failure to do so would require the City and County to repay the $1,000,000 grant to DLG.

"...these provisions require Clinton County and the City of Albany to ensure the operation and continued eligibility (all residents 53.3 percent low and moderate-income have access to the facility) of the Wellness Center until five years from the date of the project close-out."

The agreement also gives three options should the Wellness Center be unable to operate prior to the 2016 date, and includes:

1) Provide the additional funding necessary...to continue operations;

2) Operate the Center under an alternative arrangement; or

3) Close the Center and return the $1 million grant to DLG.

The letter also requested his office be notified by May 15 of their (city and county) intentions.

The next regular meeting of Clinton County Fiscal Court is scheduled for Thursday, May 15 at 5 p.m. and is open to the public.

Record-breaking tornado wave begins

May 1, 2003

A record-breaking wave of tornadoes begins across the southern and midwestern United States on this day in 2003. By the time the wave is over, more than 500 tornadoes are recorded for the month, shattering the previous record by more than 100.

The amazing spate of twisters followed an unusually quiet month of April, when tornadoes are usually most frequent. March and April also saw a lack of significant thunderstorms, another highly unusual situation. But the residents of the South and Midwest were not in the clear. In 2003, the moist, warm air necessary for the formation of tornadoes did not arrive from the Gulf of Mexico until May and, when it did, weather conditions in these regions changed suddenly. The first 10 days of May brought an incredible amount of destructive weather to the central United States, including more than 300 tornadoes.

The best available records regarding tornadoes in the second half of the 20th century show that the previous high for tornadoes in a month was 399 in June 1992. May 2003 had a remarkable 516 recorded twisters. However, the 38 people killed in May 2003 were far fewer than the record 163 dead in May 1953. The death toll was lower because 2003 saw no F5 tornadoes (the highest intensity with winds in excess of 260 mph) and very few measured as high as F4 (with winds in excess of 207 mph).

Illinois alone had 74 recorded tornadoes in May 2003, almost 50 percent more than its previous monthly high. Missouri suffered through 71 twisters in the month, which dwarfed the pervious high of 29 in December 1982.

The worst stretch of tornadoes over a small stretch of time was recorded April 3-4, 1974, when 148 individual tornadoes touched down across the Midwest in an 18-hour period. During a single hour in the middle of this vast storm, 20 tornadoes were recorded at the same time. More than 300 people died in this single storm.

Shoemaker becomes oldest man to win Kentucky Derby

May 3, 1986

On May 3, 1986, 54-year-old Willie Shoemaker, aboard 18/1 shot Ferdinand, becomes the oldest jockey ever to win the Kentucky Derby. The victory was just one of Shoemaker's 8,833 wins, a record that stood until 1999, when it was broken by Laffit Pincay.

William Lee Shoemaker was born prematurely on August 19, 1931, in the West Texas town of Fabens. He weighed just two pounds at birth, and doctors predicted he would not survive the night. Even as a full-grown man, "Shoe" was just 4 feet 11 inches tall and 98 pounds.

When he was 10, Shoemaker moved with his father to Los Angeles, where he won a Golden Gloves boxing championship in the 95-105 pound class. Seven years later, on March 19, 1949, he first rode a horse professionally; he was 17. Shoemaker won his first professional race a month later, and soon became known for his patience and great hands. He rarely used his whip and instead relied mostly on the bit and the harness. In 1953, Shoe set a record for most wins in one year with 485. His record in Triple Crown races was similarly outstanding: He won a total of four Kentucky Derbys, two Preakness Stakes and five Belmont Stakes. He placed or showed (second and third place, respectively) in another 14 Triple Crown races over the course of his career

Shoemaker's most famous run, however, was one he did not win. In the 1957 Kentucky Derby, he mistook the 1-16 mile marker for the finish line and stood up in celebration. He and his horse, Gallant Man, ended up losing the race by a nose. Shoe responded with characteristic calm, explaining to fans and reporters that the course had been changed and that he'd been confused by the lack of a finish marker.

After recovering from a broken leg that forced him to miss a year of racing, Shoe broke the career record for wins on September 7, 1970, passing Johnny Longden with his 6,033rd victory. Shoe's last win, on horse Beau Genius, came nearly 20 years later on January 20, 1990, at Gulfstream Park in Florida. It was his 8,833rd win in 40,350 races. He collected nearly $123 million in purses in his 40-year career.

In 1991, the year after Shoemaker retired from racing, a single car drunk-driving accident left him paralyzed from the neck down. Though he was unable to walk, he retained his sense for horses and returned to training them from his wheelchair.

Shoemaker died in his sleep on October 12, 2003, at his home in San Marino, California.

Cast announced for Barefoot in the Park at Good Neighbors Theatre

Tickets are now on sale for Good Neighbors Theatre's production of Barefoot in the Park by Neil Simon, with production arrangements through Samuel French Inc., Publishers.

The play will be performed May 2 and 3 at 7:00 pm and May 4 at 2:00 p.m. The following week's performances are scheduled for May 8, 9, and 10 at 7:00 p.m.

Barefoot in the Park is clever and hilarious, filled with snappy dialogue and witty one-liners. An outstanding cast is under the direction of Melva Nunnery.

The play begins with Corie Bratter's (Amanda Hatfield) rapturous examination of her empty apartment. She is interrupted by Harry Pepper (Danny Thomas), a repairman who has come to install the Bratters' new telephone.

Not only is it a six-flight climb, but also the apartment is extremely cold because it has no working heating system.

After the repairman leaves, Paul Bratter (Donovan Hatfield) arrives, out of breath and freezing. He is twenty-six, conservative, and very excited about getting his first court case.

Walking up the stairs completely exhausts the characters, granting hilarious, out-of-breath entrances for telephone repairmen, delivery men, and mothers-in-law alike. Jeff Neeley plays the delivery man.

Mrs. Ethel Banks, Corie's widowed mother, is an unexpected guest. Mrs. Banks is at loose ends; her life has no direction. She is given a firm piece of advice by Corie: She must plunge into life in the hope of finding someone to love. Debbie Cross and Janet Keisling share this role.

Victor Velasco (Paul Petrick), lives in the attic of the apartment building. He immediately charms Corie, who realizes that she has found a dinner companion for her mother. Mr. Velasco prides himself on his eccentricity. He loves exotic food and even more exotic conversation.

Together, these six characters will bring a night of hilarious entertainment.

Ticket price is $12 for adults and $10 for children 3-12. Infants through age 2 are free if they are on a lap. Tickets are available at the Byrdstown/Pickett County Chamber of Commerce and can be placed on Will Call by calling (931) 864-7195.

Tickets may also be purchased in advance in person at the Chamber Office on Highway 111. All tickets are non-refundable.

Good Neighbors Theatre has an open seating policy. Persons needing special assistance for wheelchairs/walkers should make that known when purchasing their tickets.

Unpaid tickets on Will Call not claimed 10 minutes prior to curtain are subject to resale if the audience in attendance and including the held tickets is at sold out capacity and people are waiting to buy tickets.

First of all, I thank my God for His goodness, love, grace and mercy that He gives daily. I thank God for all the people who have helped us in the past few weeks in caring for my husband Mitchell. I thank you for all the prayers, all the calls, all the visits, all the cards, all the food, all the money. I am overwhelmed by the kindness of my family and friends. You know who you are. Words can't express my gratitude. I have been abundantly blessed. Thank you, and I know Mitchell thanks you. God bless everyone of you. To God alone be the glory, honor and praise.

Pam Bridgeman and all the family
